Grammar topic	Sentence from your brief	What is it expressing? (real experience / present imagination / past hypothesis)
Present Perfect	Over the last year, bots powered by language models have started to pose as customers.	Real experience: Describe a real experience or situation that has occurred continuously or recently over the past year.
Second Conditional	If companies couldn't tell people from bots, every chat channel would become a door for fraud.	Present-day hypothetical scenario: Imagine a hypothetical situation in the present and its consequences if companies were unable to distinguish between humans and bots.
Perfect Conditional	"If the agents had known which chats came from bots, they would have stopped most of the fake claims on the first message."	Past hypothesis: Posits a hypothesis about a past event that unfolded differently; speculates on what the agents would have done in the past had they possessed different information.
